Bouya is 11' long and weighs 600 pounds. He lives at our partner's attraction, Fun Spot America, on International Drive where he's a really big star. Bouya loves posing for people and lets lots of folks take pictures with him every day. Bouya has a small natural-colored spot on his eyebrow, otherwise he is the only pure white leucistic alligator at Gatorland. Combined with his incredible blue eyes, Bouya is "Hollywood Handsome," loves southern rock music, and someday they's gonna put him in the movies.

Did You Know:

Leucistic and albino alligators are different genetic variations of white alligators. That means they have different genes that make them white and so they display different phylogenetic characteristics. That's just some smart scientific talk to explain why albinos have pink eyes and leucistic gators have blue eyes.
