Moon Shine is Cotton Tail's slightly bigger sister. They're two gorgeous, albino alligators and have only been part of our white gator family for about a month. Moon Shine really lives up to her name. She's a wild and crazy southern girl that will set you straight immediately if you cross her. She loves to go muddin' in the woods, chasin' possums, and MMA fighting.

Did You Know:

Albino alligators are fairly common and can be found in many zoos. Breeding two albino alligators, especially if they are closely related, can create some serious birth defects in their babies. To insure healthier babies, professional breeders will breed albinos with normal colored gators that carry the recessive (albino) gene. This lessens the probability of major birth defects.
